

About EverStride:

The thrill of athletic victory... and the agony of the feet.

An athlete's feet tell the story of commitment, endurance, persistence and passion. In a quest for excellence, they also speak of punishment. A runner's foot strikes the pavement about 800 times during each mile they run with a force almost triple their body weight. The training leading up to game day makes their feet more vulnerable than any other part of their body. A female athlete is proud to show off her lean legs, but she'll be self-conscious wearing strappy sandals with her feet covered in blisters. EverStride makes your feet look and feel as good as the rest of your body does.

That's why the creators of EverStride came up with a product to protect your feet from those painful blisters and bumps that stop you in your tracks. EverStride has been tested in doctors' offices around the country on athletes from weekend warriors to marathon medalers, and it really works. EverStride is non-greasy, reduces callus build-up and repairs and softens cracked or split heels. And to make sure your footing is protected we made sure that all EverStride products are recyclable.

Whether you're a sports enthusiast or an avid competitor, EverStride takes the pain out of the gain. And everyone knows that behind every great sportsman is a great line of defense. Make yours EverStride.
